flower vase in stainless steel, red inside

a flower vase in stainless steel, its interior finished in red: two tubes working together like communicating vessels. designed by joshua linacisoro with matteo guida, 2024.it began as a tribute to the traditional porrón. the first version, made in ceramic with ihintza errekondo, had a small lid on the taller tube with a pinhole that let out a thin stream of wine. without the lid there was room for flowers, and the porrón became a vase. the red interior of the steel version was matteo guida's idea.open edition, made to order — ships from the studio within two calendar weeks.linacisoro design is the studio of joshua linacisoro in donostia–san sebastián. he studied product design at elisava and industrial design engineering at mu mondragón, and trained as a technical draughtsman at easo politécnico.it holds water for fresh flowers.height 27 cm, width 14 cm, depth 7 cm.
